

to the connection of McGee with him, he asked for his name. Upon being told that it was McGee, he broke forth in the most bitter denunciations of McGee as a Pro-Slavery man in the country. McGee was then taken to the boat, and brought in with the captured arms, &c.

The Governor asked Brown if he had taken the Government money. He replied, with indignation, that he had not. He said that he had no object but to take slaves from their masters; they had money in abundance, and though they searched a passenger in the train for arms, who had in his possession $10,000, they did not molest the money.

The letters found on Brown's farm showed that the insurgents were in the receipt of money from other parties. Brown's manner to Governor was most dignified and respectful. He claimed equality as to character and motive, and complained throughout of the treatment visited upon him—while humanity had governed his own conduct, and he had no prisoners, he had been treated as a ruffian and brute.

A CARD.

GIRARD HOUSE, PHILADELPHIA, October 24, 1859.

While coming to this city, on Saturday, I read a telegraphic dispatch from Washington, stating that John Brown (the prisoner captured at Harper's Ferry) refused, in the presence of Senator Mason and Messrs. Faulkner and Vallandigham, to answer the question, whether he had taken the Government money for the Virginia expedition.

It is evident that the object of these gentlemen was not to obtain facts on which to predicate a charge of treason, but to expose a disreputable act. Had such been their object, they would not have published what was not said; but they proclaim their suspicions, and by such insinuations and insinuations seek to impugn the character of one who is not present.

I do not feel called on to reply to such attempts at cold reproach upon myself. I say to these gentlemen, gentlemen, I am your peer. I have been as brave and as patriotic as you, and as honestly, as either of you, and you know, and the country knows, that any question you may propose to me touching the Government, its policy or its conduct, I will answer, as honestly and fully as you, to the extent of my knowledge and belief; and I pronounce this attempt to assail me dishonorable, unworthy of this position, unworthy of honorable men.

Yours truly, L. CLEPHANE, Esq., Sec'y Repub. Association, Washington.

The following resolution was also unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the Secretary be directed to cause the city papers a copy of these resolutions.

After which, the meeting adjourned.

A LONG CONVERSATION WITH BROWN.

The reporter of the Baltimore American furnishes the following interesting account of a conversation between Senator Mason and others and Brown, the leader of the revolt. We give it for what it is worth, as a piece of news, without confining it to its statements. If it in any degree mis-states the conversation, its publication will be the best means of detecting the errors of the reporter.

quest. I think the times auspicious to our cause. No reflecting conservative man of any section of country can fail to see now the necessity of a recurrence to that policy which was adopted by the Government. Under that policy the country had uninterrupted internal peace and harmony for sixty years. The overthrow of that policy by the adoption of the Missouri Compromise and the adoption of the policy of imposing slavery upon our own Territories and upon neighboring people, requiring the reopening of the African slave trade, to give it effect has produced discord throughout the land, and will surely, if continued, result in a civil war, in the disruption of the Confederacy. For this reason, the full spirit of Nullification should be given to the civil strife, and no compromise, whether in the interests of Virginia, the Abolitionists, or of Kansas by the Border Ruffians.

The Republican party, which is alike denounced by the Abolitionists and the Nullifiers, was founded to defeat the common aims of both. Discarding the crack-brained theories of each of these deluded and dangerous factions, the Republican party is now engaged in the practice which during more than half a century secured the safety of our citizens in their homes, and raised our country to its exalted position among nations. The strife which has followed the adoption of the mischievous vagaries of the Nullifiers has been the cause of the death of thousands of our citizens, and the raising of our country to its exalted position among nations. The strife which has followed the adoption of the mischievous vagaries of the Nullifiers has been the cause of the death of thousands of our citizens, and the raising of our country to its exalted position among nations.
